Working together to control employer health care costs in north central Wisconsin

The Northcentral Employers Healthcare Alliance (NEHA) is a member-owned group of employers in north central Wisconsin with two common goals: improving employee health and controlling the rising costs of health care. All NEHA member companies maintain self-funded health insurance programs and benefit from advantageous medical provider contracts, group discussions and professional health care management services. If you are a business, school district or other government entity providing health care benefits to 50 or more employees, we invite you to become a member of NEHA.

Our strength is in our numbers...

The Northcentral Employers Healthcare Alliance (NEHA) has been very successful in reducing health care costs for self-funded employers since 1997. Today, NEHA's membership includes more than 30 employers with more than 38,000 covered lives. In addition to leveraging group purchasing power, membership in NEHA can help employers:

- increase access to cost-effective options for comprehensive care
- help improve group health plan administration

“ The vision of having area employers join together and collaborate on best practices to improve the cost and quality of health care is as relevant today as it was 25 years ago. By working together, the NEHA members have been able to reduce the trend of health care cost increases, and have achieved per-employee costs that are less than regional benchmarks.”
